

BROOKLINE MONTHLY NEWSLETTER

MAY 2023

TOWN ADMINISTRATOR'S UPDATE

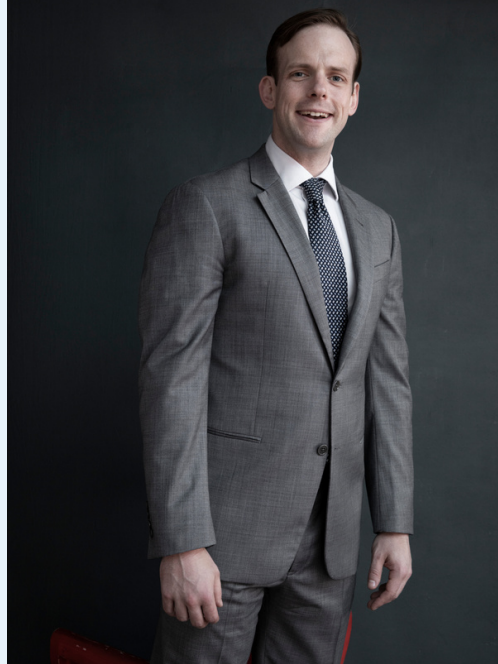

Dear Brookline,

I don't think there's ever not a "busy season" around here, but May feels particularly packed on our municipal calendar. We've just had a record-turnout election, and we're headed straight into our first in-person Town Meeting since the pandemic began. We're celebrating Asian-American/Pacific Islander Heritage Month, Jewish-American Heritage Month, and, starting on Sunday, Public Service Recognition Week.

Before Public Service Recognition Week even began, you, the community, gave us, your workers, a significant vote of confidence when you approved an operating override (Question 2A on your ballots), voluntarily authorizing the collection of additional property taxes to restore and add to municipal services.

An override is not a panacea for all that ails the community, but it buoys our team here to know that you gave us additional resources so we can try to address your needs. We take your support very seriously, and work every day to show that your trust in us is well-placed. Thank you.

You may have already attended the Department of Public Works' Complete Streets Prioritization Plan Meeting on May 4—if you missed it, take a look at the survey that went out beforehand (I recommend using a computer rather than a phone or tablet). It asks: "where would you like to see safer, more comfortable, and more convenient places for travel in Brookline?" With the override phasing in $2,000,000 in additional annual funding over three years for our roads, we're aiming to be quicker and bolder on multi-modal transportation projects with high community impact. You authorized more money for our Rodent Control Action Plan so we can build out the staff and supplies we need to make this year's upcoming outdoor dining season a sanitary success. You helped improve services for seniors while ensuring that our social workers are paid commensurately with other communities. The list goes on—there's a lot of forward-thinking, rather than just sustaining, work that's now possible with the passage of this override. You can review what you voted for at the Override Central website.

Your support for the override was robust, but the election featured a number of other close races: according to the unofficial results, the municipal composting program question failed by just over 50 votes, a Select Board race was decided by 26 votes, and Town Meeting seat margins were as low as the single digits. But as we turn our attention away from the competitive side of politics and toward the business of governance, I'm optimistic that we can move past lingering divisiveness and towards real dialogue on big issues.

The government needs to pass a budget that reflects community priorities, keep striving towards our fossil-fuel-free future, and focus on the practical steps it can take to transform the aspirations for an open and inclusive Brookline into realities on the ground. I hope you'll stay engaged in respectful conversation with your representatives, new and old, as Town Meeting begins on Tuesday, May 23 at 7 p.m. in the High School auditorium. (You can read the items on the agenda here, with one extra item here.)

Since we're now heading into the aforementioned Public Service Recognition Week, I hope you'll take the time to thank some of the many, many people who keep Brookline running if you see them out and about. I want to extend my particular thanks to the people behind the scenes, whose work the public only experiences by virtue of the absence of any problems. One of this community's biggest assets is its employees. It's been an honor to be a part of this team for more than half a year now (where does the time go?), and I hope we keep working and growing together. Thank you, Brookline public servants, for everything you do, and thanks again to the community for all the support you provide.

Regards,
Chas

THE TOWN CLERK'S CORNER: THANK YOU FOR VOTING

The Town Clerk's Office held a successful Annual Town Election on May 2, 2023. With turnout just over 30%, this is the largest voter engagement in an Annual Town Election since 2008.

The Town is incredibly grateful for the community volunteers - poll workers, wardens, mailing clerks - who continue to support the Town Clerk's office in this critical function. The Police Department and the Department of Public Works also play a critical role in making the town elections successful.

Find Health and Other Town Departments at the Brookline Farmers' Market This Season

The Brookline Department of Public Health and Human Services Department's free food coupon program for income-eligible families will return this summer at the Brookline Farmers' Market. The free food coupon program offers eligible Brookline families the opportunity to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables utilizing vouchers. Over 600 Brookline households enrolled in the program last year and spent nearly $34,000 shopping among 22 vendors who offer fruits, vegetables, meat, dairy products, and other food items.

Eligibility is extended to individuals and families who reside in Brookline Housing Authority (BHA) properties, residents whose household income meets federal poverty level guidelines, and residents whose children attend a Brookline school through programs such as METCO who meet eligibility guidelines.

Coupons will be valid at the Farmers' Market starting Thursday, June 1 through the end of the season in November. Individuals and families of two will receive $50 in coupons while households of three or more will receive $100 in coupons. Families will receive the coupons once during the season.

Staff from the Public Health Department will be at locations throughout Brookline for registration. Coupon books for the Farmers' Market will be distributed at that time.

Public registration sites will be located at:
Brookline Senior Center, 93 Winchester St., on Wednesday, May 24, from 10:00 AM – 12:00 PM
Brookline Farmers' Market, Thursday, June 1, from 1:30 – 6:00 PM

Registration also will take place at BHA housing sites.

Additional information will be available at www.brooklinema.gov/health. Those with questions should contact Lynne Karsten, director of community health, at 617-730-2336 or by email at lkarsten@brooklinema.gov.

THE BROOKLINE POLICE DEPARTMENT WORKS TO COMBAT ANTI-SEMITISM WITH THE BLUE PIN CAMPAIGN

Brookline resident and Patriots owner Robert Kraft's Foundation to Combat Antisemitism launched a national campaign aimed at stopping hateful acts against Jewish people.

#StandUpToJewishHate and the blue square pin have been circulating in the media and on television spots. Most recently, you can see it on Brookline Police Department uniforms thanks to patrol officer Juan Pena. Pena, who works the overnight shift, reached out to the campaign to see what he could do to support the cause. The foundation responded enthusiastically by providing pins for officers to display on their uniforms.

Officer Pena worked to obtain the pins, distribute them, and temporarily modify the uniform policy so the department could stand in solidarity with Jewish Brookline residents and Jewish people everywhere.

MENTAL HEALTH AWARENESS, REMINDERS, AND RESOURCES

May is Mental Health Awareness Month, and this year it is more important than ever to support mental health and wellbeing in ourselves, our friends and family, and our community. One in five adults lives with a mental health condition, and over the past three years we have seen a marked increase in mental health crises both in Brookline and the state as a whole – particularly in young people, who are experiencing higher rates than ever of depression, anxiety, and suicidal thoughts.

Yet too often, stigma gets in the way of people getting the support they need for their mental health. This month is an important reminder to us all to recognize that mental health is just as important as physical health, and should be treated as such. We all experience ups and downs in our mental health and we should be able to ask for help without shame, stigma, or discrimination.

This past year there has been a big push on the part of the state to increase access to mental health services. While there is still a long way to go to make mental health support truly accessible to all, there are some important new resources available.

The Massachusetts Behavioral Health Helpline is a free, confidential, 24/7 service that can connect you or your child to clinical help:

833-773-2445

Masshelpline.com

Brookline residents also have access to 24/7 in person mental health crisis services through our local mobile crisis team, the Boston Emergency Services Team. This team is now available to all, regardless of insurance.

800-981-4357

<https://northsuffolk.org/services/emergency-services/boston-emergency-services-team/>

The Massachusetts chapter of the National Alliance on Mental Illness offers free support and education programs in the community for people experiencing a mental health challenge as well as for family members and loved ones:

Namimass.org

800-370-9085

The Parent Professional Advocacy League has a range of resources for parents to support good mental health as a key component of children's healthy development:

Lastly, the Brookline Police Department is committed to providing compassionate and safe responses to community members experiencing a mental health crisis and connecting them to appropriate supports.

Family, Fishing, & Fun at the Reservoir

Sunday, April 30th, was a big day at the Brookline Reservoir. MassWildlife, Friends of the Brookline Reservoir, The Public Library of Brookline, and the Parks and Open Space Division of the DPW partnered with the Recreation Department to present Family, Fishing, and Fun Day. A spring perennial planting with Parks, story time with the Library, and fishing lessons with MassWildlife all made for quite the afternoon at the reservoir. Even with the rain and mist, 122 people joined us to enjoy the beautiful open space in the Town of Brookline.

COUNCIL ON AGING

VOLUNTEER APPRECIATION

On April 19th, the Brookline Senior Center celebrated our annual Volunteer Appreciation Event. Following several welcomes by COA Chair Yolanda Rodriguez, Senior Center Director Ruthann Dobek, and Volunteer Coordinator Valerie Graf, nominees for Volunteer of the Year Award were recognized. These volunteers, reflecting the wide spectrum of services and contributions to the Senior Center, included Dale Butler, Judy Chasin, Marcia Goldstein, Ann Harshman, Pam Hitchmoth, Mary Kuchinsky, Lyudmila Lugovyer, Dr. Guotong Man, Dick Morse, John Seay, and Lucia Soare.

Ruthann announced the two recipients of the 2023 John & Molly Dolan Volunteer of the Year Award: Lyudmila Lugovyer and Dick Morse. Both Lyudmila and Dick have taught English language conversation (ESL) classes weekly for over 20 years at the Senior Center. Ruthann thanked them for their dedication, and the thousands of volunteer hours they have given to folks since the Senior Center opened in 2001. Dick and Lyudmila each shared their individual experiences as longtime volunteers, noting that they “receive far more than they give.”

For the 2023 Community Service Award, Ruthann gave special recognition to the Senior Center Etsy shop, Brookline Bazaar, thanking all those in the Senior Center community who have donated to and purchased from the shop. Brookline Bazaar sales help subsidize programming and entertainment at the Senior Center. Since its inception in September 2021, the shop has sold over 176 items with a revenue over $8,500.

Select Board representative to the Council on Aging John VanScoyoc also shared words of appreciation, and recognized the large in-person attendance at the event, relating that the “best cure” for some of the loneliness or isolation that many older adults experience is “to reach out and connect, and to show up.” John led the room in a round of congratulatory applause, recognizing the dedication and voluntarism of all those in attendance.

EMPLOYEE FEATURE: JUSTIN LAWSON ON SERVICE LEADERSHIP & RECREATION

Justin Lawson is the general manager of the Robert T. Lynch (RTL) Golf Course also known as the Brookline Golf Course or Putterham and is run by the Town of Brookline's Recreation Department. He oversees everything from the club house operations, to golf carts, electric lawn mowers, and the full programming schedule of the organization. Justin makes it his mission to engage with every person who steps foot on the property to recreate, and he wants to bring that to the next level up by investing in new initiatives and thinking outside the box so that all Brookline residents can enjoy the culture and greenspace of the RTL Course. Read on to find out about Justin's philosophy on recreation, the golf course's approach to culture, and all the ways you can enjoy it this spring and summer – and every season!

When did you start working for the Town?

May 21, 2020. I was hired as the temporary general manager at the height of the Covid-19 pandemic. I was fortunate to be appointed to full time in late July of that same year. I fell in love with the place. It was love at first sight. I started my professional career right here in Brookline at The Country Club (TCC), but never came across the other side of the fence to Robert T. Lynch during my previous time in Brookline. When I was hired and to this very day, I hit the ground running. There was an incredible amount of deferred maintenance to catch up on.

What is your favorite part about working for the Town?

Providing an experience for the community. I spent most of my career providing an experience for a select few people in the private country club business, but now I have the opportunity to give back to the town through this public, municipal course. Regardless of someone's resources or background - everyone can come here and have a great time. We have an affordable driving range, an excellent restaurant, and an awesome course that now features winter sports, live music on Friday nights, etc. There is something for everyone.

What does public service mean to you?

Public service is important – that sounds cliché but I've always been grounded in hospitality and hosting and the values in public service are the same. Being able to take a service forward approach to the Brookline community and their need to recreate – like public works, public safety, public health, this value provides the inspiration to go the extra mile that people remember because recreation; just like our streets, sidewalks, and public safety, recreation, is a public service.

What is the most significant project you've worked on in this role?

The US Open was a once in a generation opportunity for our team at RTL. The US Open gave the Town of Brookline an opportunity to be the center of the golf world that I love and also see this municipal golf course to get a seat at the table on the world stage. It was incredibly special. As an enterprise fund, our resources are limited, so an event like this allowed us to get creative around new initiatives and revenue. It provided the means for us to get to the next level including some really cool community benefits. This was a project that every department in the Town worked on together and we saw the talented professionals in town government work as one team. It was a great project to show what can happen when people collaborate – which can be a challenge in any big organization with departmental silos – but we came together to put on a weeklong showcase to the world and show what Brookline is all about. People have called it the most successful US Open and I think a lot of it has to do with that teamwork. It was a highlight of my career to work on it with everyone.

Tell us about your team and your approach to leadership?

The people on the team that I inherited had been here for a long time and they were my biggest resource. I came in and listened to them and I think that makes all the difference. I believe in a leader is responsible for providing what the team needs to do their job. I like to tap into people's passion for their desire to be on our team and for me this is a critical part of making them successful which is the ultimate goal. If our team culture is good here at RTL then the culture is automatically good when our patrons join us.

What is something you want residents to know about the RTL golf course?

While people look at the golf course as a piece of land, it has world class capabilities. Brookline is known for its remarkable greenspace and has a robust history of landscape design, parks, open space, etc. The RTL golf course can be an integral part of the green space network that the town is famous for. We're working to make it as accessible as possible – that starts with making it stable by catching up on maintenance and getting back to basics, so our foundation is solid to provide the best recreational services we can for future generations.

What is your favorite thing to do in Brookline?

Go to the RTL golf course! This is Disney World to me. And the best place to dine, hands down, is the Hemlock Grill. Right now, my order is the Philly cheesesteak - it is unbelievable!

Stay engaged with the Brookline Golf Course by following along on social media!
